The 20 Best Fraternity Houses On The West Coast

The West Coast might be known mostly for surfing, liberal laws on marijuana, and perfect weather, but you might also like to know that some of our nation's greatest fraternity houses are built on the West Coast. While most of these houses aren't as big or as grand as some of what you'll see down South or in the Midwest, the brothers on the "Best Coast" aren't without ideal living spaces. They've even got their own style and design. In order to come up with our definitive ranking, COED researched the greatest fraternity houses on the West Coast (including Colorado and New Mexico) and came up with these 20 winners. We listed (when possible) their amenities, how many brothers sleep there, and anything else we thought would make you excited. But most importantly, we pulled together as many photos of the interior and exterior as possible to give you the best look inside.

#1: Sigma Nu – Gamma Kappa Chapter

SCHOOL: Colorado University – Boulder

Amenities: It's a complex, total of five houses, beach volleyball court, basketball court, pool table, gym, horseshoe pit, hot tub, laundry room,

What makes it so great: One is nice, but five (the total number of houses included within the Sigma Nu complex) is better. We're not sure, but we'd bet that all the real estate makes Sigma Nu the largest fraternity chapter in the nation. Thankfully, they use it to the best of their abilities. They host numerous parties, and the place is insane during college football season. If you're ever at Boulder and looking for a place to go, try and make your way to Sigma Nu. It's a fraternity brothers' dream.
